Brindle Mini Rex

Black/Orange, Blue/Fawn, Chocolate/Orange, and Lilac/Fawn

Brindle–Black/Orange, Blue/Fawn, Chocolate/Orange, and Lilac/Fawn compete together.
(Quality of Color: 5 points; Distribution of color: 10 points)
Brindle will consist of an even distribution of one of the following two-color combinations: Rich lustrous black and bright golden-orange, rich lustrous blue and bright golden-fawn, rich lustrous chocolate and bright golden-orange or rich lustrous lilac and bright golden-fawn. An even distribution of color is of most importance. Ideally, no one color will take precedence over another. Toenails may be light, dark, or mismatched. Note: Eye circles, underside of jowls, tail, and belly may be pale cream. Eyes- Brown in Black and Chocolate varieties; Blue-gray in Blue and Lilac varieties.

Faults–Poor intermixing of colors, faded or weak base color, spots or stripes; brindled areas suggesting alternation.

Disqualifications from Competition–Tortoise color or discernable shading. Definite white spots. White toenails. Any identifiable Harlequin marking covering the ears, face, chest, forelegs, rear legs, and/or body. A Harlequin marking is defined as a large and distinctly solid colored bar or band across the body or a distinct and solid colored alternation across the ears, face, chest, or legs.

Note: A shadowing effect or heavily brindled appearance of a marking is not to be considered a full colored marking. A simple split face line, without a full colored orange and black side (using Black/Orange as an example) is not a split face marking.
